

Wilson Secures Funds for Ohio University's Program to Reduce Violence Against Women

WASHINGTON, DC – Congressman Charlie Wilson (OH-6) is pleased to announce a federal grant worth $300,000 from the U.S. Department of Justice that will benefit Ohio University's Program to Reduce Domestic Violence, Sexual Assault, and Stalking on Campus.

The program aims to combat violent crimes against women on campuses through coordinated efforts by law enforcement, health providers, administrators, student leaders, faith-based organizations, student organizations, and disciplinary boards at Ohio University. The program is also committed to enhancing victim services, implementing prevention and education programs, and strengthening security around campus.

"Congratulations to Ohio University," Wilson said. "Educating students about dating violence and sexual assault is crucial to reducing these sorts of horrible crimes. I'm proud to have worked towards making sure young women are safe and secure while off at school."
